Wukong Plays in the Sand

Wukong had a big plan.
"A mountain of sand!"

He filled his little bucket.
Dry sand.
Tip! The sand fell flat.

“A hat!” said Pigsy.
“Try it on?”

Ao Bing brought some water.
"Let's try wet sand."

Glug, glug, glug.
"Oops! Sand soup!"

Wukong put his bucket down.
"Mountains are hard to make."

"One small try?" said Sandy.
Wukong nodded.
"Dry sand. A little water."

They mixed the wet sand.
They pressed it.
It stuck together.

Scoop, scoop.
“Ready?”

They tipped the bucket.
They lifted it slowly.
A tower stood tall!

Wukong made a tiny mountain.
Pigsy made a round cake.

Ao Bing dug a little pool.
He poured in water.

"Who lives in this tower?"
asked Pigsy.
"A tiny king!" said Wukong.

They packed the toys away.
Sandy helped brush off sand.

Wukong tipped out his shoe.
"Look! A mountain came too!"
